Tegucigalpa, Honduras, April 20.—(Via Radio)—A military revolutionary movement, which began in northern Honduras Saturday night, threatened the safety of more than 1,000 Americans in the region today.

The government of President Vicente M. Colindres sent loyal troops against the insurgents and repulsed an attack on Tela, a large coastal town.

There was sharp fighting and casualties were reported heavy among the rebels. Government troops suffered a few casualties.

Private advices said the cities of Ceiba and Progreso were captured by the revolutionaries, who also controlled various small towns on the northern coast as the uprising spread.

The government announced, however, that Ceiba had not been attacked by the rebels, and that the insurgents had been defeated in fighting near Progreso and at Saba.

The government expressed confidence that the movement would be terminated and said the loyal troops had been victorious in every clash so far.

The revolutionary movement was led by Roman Diaz, an army officer, reported to be allied with Gen. Gregorio Ferrera, former candidate for the presidency. The rebels were supposed to be attempting the overthrow of the present liberal government, elected for a four-year term in 1928.

One report said the leaders of the uprising issued a manifesto denouncing the "special privileges" extended by the government to foreign companies as prejudicing the national interests.

About 300 rebels, headed by Roman Diaz, clashed with government troops in the attack on Tela, but were forced to retire. Other battles occurred in the district, particularly near Progreso and Saba.

Insurgents were well armed with rifles and ammunition. They confiscated locomotives and railroad equipment for transportation of their forces. Communication lines were cut and it was difficult for the government to get accurate information.

Washington, April 20.—The chain of United States warships along the Central American coast was virtually doubled in strength today as a formidable revolt flared up in Honduras, endangering American lives. Already four armed vessels were off the east coast of Nicaragua, where ten Americans were killed last week.

Official reports of new trouble in Central America reached the state department late yesterday. Hurriedly it consulted with the navy. Three cruisers were dispatched to the north Honduran coast.

State department reports did not reveal the cause of revolution in Honduras, where 1,300 American lives and about $40,000,000 worth of American property are said to be at stake. Private advices indicated the revolt was directed against United States interests, alleged to enjoy special privileges inimical to Honduras.

Another landing of marine forces was reported to the state department by Consul Rowe at Bluefields, Nicaragua. He said the Guardia Nacional there had gone to meet a reported impending attack by insurgents and the marines were landed to protect the town in their absence.

Private advices said the United Fruit Company was holding a steamer at Tela to evacuate women and children. Two ships, it was said, were ordered to Castilla and Cortez to rescue Americans.

Honduras, just north of Nicaragua, has an estimated population of 740,000. The little country is one of the world's leading producers of bananas. Mining and lumbering also are important industries.

The United Fruit Company owns 163,000 acres of land, numerous buildings, railroad lines, docks and other property estimated at $25,000,000.

Observers here are anxious to see what effect this latest revolution will have on the administration's new policy of curtailing marine activities in Central America, particularly if any American lives should be lost in Honduras.

Has to Pay $154.70 to Railway for Beating Freight to Crossing

Los Angeles, April 20.—(U.P.)—Because A. P. Weiss beat a Southern Pacific train to a crossing he will have to pay the railroad $154.70.

This unusual ruling was entered today by Municipal Judge May D. Lahey after testimony had been introduced to show that Weiss won a race to the crossing with a freight train a year ago. He escaped injury by inches.

But the engineer, to avoid a crash, had to throw on the emergency brakes and the sudden stop damaged train equipment, the railroad successfully pleaded.

17-YEAR-OLD GIRL STRANGLER WITH HEMP ROPE

LOUISE TEUBER FOUND HANG-ING FROM OAK TREE ON BLACK MOUNTAIN

GROUP PICKNICKERS FIND BODY
NEAR LOS ANGELES CLAD IN BRASSIERE AND SLIPPERS

San Diego, Cal., April 20.—(U.P.)—The slaying of Louise Teuber, 17, whose body was found hanging from an oak tree on Black Mountain, 10 miles from here, presented authorities today with the problem of deciding which of many sensational motives was the right one.

Sometime after midnight, the girl was strangled with a hemp rope pulled across a limb and tied to a stump, and there, 12 hours later, a group of picknickers found her body dangling, clad only in a brassiere and a pair of slippers.

Robbery and attack were immediately discarded as motives by Sheriff Ed Cooper. An examination showed she had not been assaulted. Her purse was found in the underbrush where the rest of her clothing was scattered.

Questions foremost in the minds of investigating officers were:

"Who was the girl's companion Saturday night? Where were they between the time she left her work and the approximate of her death? Was her companion a sailor, as the expertness with which the garroting knot was tied, would indicate?

"Was a jealous woman to be sought—a woman who led a 'lynching party' for the possible disrupter of her home?"

Sheriff Cooper admitted that the last suggestion was plausible, but said initial investigation had failed to disclose definite proof to uphold any one of the theories.

Deputies definitely established that Miss Teuber was taken to the lonely spot, alive and hanged there, but condition of the ground and underbrush was such that no clues as to the number of persons involved could be found.

Miss Teuber was the daughter of William Teuber, well-to-do barber. She had hosts of men friends in this city.

San Diego, Cal., April 20.—A letter written by 17-year-old Louise Teuber was delivered to her father today hours after her almost nude body was found hanging by a rope from the limb of a tree near Black Mountain.

The sheriff's office made the note public. It read:

"Dear Dad: I have tried for a long time to be satisfied with the way you are running the house and I can stand it no longer. I am leaving home tonight and I am not coming back."

The letter, a special delivery, was stamped at the post office at 7 P. M. Saturday and had been mailed in San Diego. Five hours later, according to the best information at hand, Louise was hanged to the tree.

Teuber said he was forced to spend much time in his barber shop and that much of the care of his home fell to his aged mother.

"We did the best we could," the father said.

Teuber said that he told Louise last Thursday night that she could not go out with some youth, whose name the father did not remember.

"She later slipped out of the back door," Teuber said. "When she came home Friday I scolded her. That was the last time I saw her."

A preliminary autopsy performed by Dr. F. E. Toomey, indicated the girl had not been attacked. A more complete examination will be made today to determine if she was an expectant mother, it was said.

quested the reinforcements, which will leave tomorrow by airplane and boat to be distributed in the endangered areas along the coast, which have reported quiet in the last 24 hours.

The general expression of opinion among Americans on the United States department's new policy regarding American interests here was not favorable. Considerable interest was aroused in the possibility of British action to protect citizens in Nicaragua.

C. F. Gaarenstrom, Secretary, Accepts Post of Chairman State Rural Credits Bureau

H. M. JOHNSON OF STARBUCK IS MADE SECRETARY

GAARENSTROM'S APPOINTMENT
WILL BE EFFECTIVE

OLE SAGENG, PRESENT CHAIR-MAN, CONTINUES CHAIRMAN
UNTIL MAY

St. Paul, Minn., April 20.—(U.P.)—C. F. Gaarenstrom, temporary secretary of the rural credits bureau, today accepted an appointment as permanent chairman of that body.

Gaarenstrom, who was asked to investigate the administration of H. H. Flowers, former secretary of the bureau, by Governor Floyd B. Olson, was largely responsible for the evidence uncovered which led to the indictment of Flowers.

Former Representative H. M. Johnson, Starbuck, was appointed to succeed Gaarenstrom as secretary.

Gaarenstrom's appointment followed a conference with Governor Olson and Ole Sageng, who has been chairman since 1925.

The appointment will be effective June 1. Sageng will continue as chairman until May when his resignation will take effect.

Gaarenstrom has been serving as county attorney of Martin county and will return to Fairmont to present his resignation to the board of county commissioners and return here June 1 to enter into his new duties.

As secretary of the bureau, Gaarenstrom recommended sweeping changes and a complete revision of the bureau's management.

Mr. Gaarenstrom now is conducting two new investigations of the bureau, one to determine whether any other officers or members of the bureau beside Flowers were involved in its alleged mismanagement and the other to clear up the distribution of state money in connection with the bureau.

The new chairman now is president of the Minnesota County Attorneys Association of which Gov. Olson was president a year ago.

With Flowers scheduled for arraignment today on charges contained in 10 indictments, it was revealed that investigations have been opened into two additional phases of the bureau's affairs.

Gaarenstrom said that inquiries are being made to learn:

1. Whether any other employees of the bureau were involved in alleged irregularities with Flowers; and
2. To learn the reason for payments of state funds made in the bureau's $500,000 construction campaign of 1930.

Gaarenstrom denied an assertion that his report on credit bureau affairs submitted to Gov. Floyd B. Olson, was "rewritten from a report made by E. J. Quamme, who was hired by the bureau to make an inquiry." That statement was reported to have come from H. M. Feroe, assistant state's attorney general and member of the board.

"The rural credits bureau never has made an investigation by Quamme or anyone else," Gaarenstrom said in denying Feroe's statement. "Quamme made his investigation at the request of Governor Olson and myself."

Flowers' arraignment was postponed until Thursday so that his attorney, Representative John Regan, Mankato, may attend the closing sessions of the Minnesota legislature.

The former secretary of the rural credits bureau was released on his own recognizance.

Find Body of St. Paul Man Slumped Over Wheel of Automobile

St. Paul, April 20.—(U.P.)—Slumped over the wheel of a Chevrolet sedan parked 200 yards off the Goose Lake road, the body of a man identified as William Hauser, 34, was discovered today by Deputy Sheriff James Leahy.

The man had been dead more than a month, Leahy said. Police were investigating to determine whether he had met with foul play or had committed suicide.

Hauser had been missing more than a month from the Collis Products company where he was employed. His wife reported to police that her husband had been missing on April 7, although he had not been heard from for some weeks previous to that time.

A 32 caliber bullet was found in the pocket of the victim but no weapon was in the automobile or near it.

Minneapolis, April 20.—(U.P.)—Madama Amelita Galli Curci and her husband, Homer Samuels, will leave today for the east after a short vacation for friends here. The singer and her husband came here from the Pacific coast.

2 TRAFFIC MISHAPS FOR WEEK END NEAR THE TWIN CITIES

St. Paul, April 20.—(U.P.)—Two traffic casualties were recorded today from week end accidents near the Twin Cities.

William D. Stewart, state game and fish commissioner, was injured seriously while enroute to St. Cloud for a speaking engagement. The accident occurred five miles north of Clear Lake on highway No. 3 when another car forced Stewart's automobile into a ditch. He was taken to his home.

The dead were Dennis Bray, 3, St. Paul, who was struck by an automobile in front of his home, and Carl Frandsen, 40, who was fatally injured by an auto driven by David M. Kennedy, St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., April 20.—(U.P.)—Henry Gallagher of Waseca, Minn., was appointed today to be state industrial commissioner, succeeding F. A. Duxbury, who was removed at Gov. Floyd B. Olson's instigation.

Gallagher's appointment was announced by Governor Olson. It must be confirmed by the state senate.

Mankato, Minn., April 20.—Henry Gallagher, 45, an attorney of Waseca, announced here today that he will accept Gov. Floyd B. Olson's appointment of him as state industrial commissioner.

TRIPLE SLAYING AND SUICIDE AT SYRACUSE

POLICE INVESTIGATE TIP OF
"SOMETHING APPARENTLY WRONG" IN HOME

WEXTER L. WAINWRIGHT HANG-ED SELF, 3 CHILDREN POISON-ED, CLUBBED AND HANGED

Syracuse, N. Y., April 20.—(U.P.)—A triple slaying and a suicide were discovered in a home today when police investigated a tip that "something apparently was wrong" in the house.

The body of Wexter L. Wainwright, 64, was found hanging in a hallway of the house. The bodies of the man's three children, Rosalind, 11, Richard, 9, and Jacqueline, 1, were found in a nearby room. They had been poisoned, clubbed and hanged.

Letters police found in the house indicated Wainwright had killed his children and then committed suicide.

The letters were addressed to Wainwright's wife, the police, the press and the public. In the one to Mrs. Wainwright, the aged man said:

"They hollered so loud, they had to bang so no one would hear them. Oh, you are to blame for it."

Mrs. Wainwright was taken into custody shortly after the body was found. Along with her, police held Harry Blanchard, alias Donohue, of Chicago.

"He did it," Mrs. Wainwright told police when she was taken to the police station. She lit a cigarette and talked calmly at first.

"He did it," but he saved the $200," she said. "I was going to get a divorce."

After she had answered a few questions, Mrs. Wainwright fainted.

Wainwright apparently killed his children yesterday. After they were dead, police said he must have sat down to gaze at their belongings, and to write the lengthy letters.

He served for a time as county attorney of Waseca county.

He was in Mankato today to appear in a law suit in which he is an attorney.

GOVERNOR OLSON TO VETO PROPOSAL OF LEGISLATURE

ONLY 36 HOURS REMAIN IN WHICH BILLS MAY BE PASSED

IF NOTHING ADOPTED, ALL CON-GRESSMEN ELECTED AT LARGE IN 1932

St. Paul, Minn., April 20.—Reapportionment—probably the major piece of legislation remaining before the Minnesota legislature—was thrown into a muddle today when Governor Floyd B. Olson announced he would veto the only proposal on which both houses could agree.

With only 36 hours remaining in which bills may be passed, the legislators will have to agree on some measure approved by the governor, to pass the present proposal over his veto, or to allow all congressmen in 1932 to be elected at large.

The second conference report, which was adopted Saturday night by the house of representatives, was passed this afternoon by the senate after a two-hour debate. Charges were made that politics had played their part in the division of Minneapolis into three new congressional districts and that the enacted measure was unconstitutional.

Informed that the senate had approved the house measure, Governor Olson announced he would veto the bill and send it back to both houses for their reconsideration.

There was speculation on whether the senate and house would attempt to pass the measure over the governor's veto but political observers doubted if this would be possible.

The senate today rejected a motion to appoint a new committee to make a third conference report. This may be resorted to as a last resort in view of the governor's impending veto.

The governor said he would veto the measure because it was unfair in division of populations.

Some of the districts vary more than 100,000 in population under the conference proposal.

Under the new division of the state, as passed by the house and senate, the nine congressional districts would be as follows:

First—Same as at present. Population 228,596.

Second—Adds Lyon county from the present seventh district. Population, 251,734.

Third—Retains the present counties and adds the southern half of rural Hennepin and the fourth ward of the city of Minneapolis. Population, 291,601.

Fourth—Ramsey county, as at present.

Fifth—Part of Minneapolis, unchanged. Population, 344,600.

Sixth—Loses Lake of the Woods and Beltrami counties and gains Anoka, Isanti, Chisago, Mille Lacs, Kennebec and Pine from the present tenth district. Population, 301,984.

Seventh—Loses Lyon county and adds the northern part of rural Hennepin together with the third and tenth wards of Minneapolis and Wright county out of the present tenth district. Population, 326,395.

Eighth—Unchanged. Population, 276,623.

Ninth—Adds Lake of the Woods and Beltrami counties. Population, 253,786.

After more than a month of discussion, the legislature agreed on a redistricting proposal. Originally the house passed a measure splitting up the present seventh congressional district, a farmer-labor stronghold. The senate passed its own measure which resembled the one finally passed except in the division of Minneapolis.

The first conference report which placed wards of Minneapolis and rural Hennepin county in four congressional districts, was not accepted by the house and a second report was drawn up. The house accepted it Saturday and the senate today.

The passage today came after more than two hours' debate during which Minneapolis legislators attacked the alignments as inspired by politics, unfair to Minneapolis and unconstitutional. The city was placed in three congressional districts with the urban population having a controlling vote in only one of the districts—the present fifth.

Senator Henry Spindler, Buffalo, argued that the conference report should be thrown out. He wanted a new committee named to work out a different alignment. His motion lost, 39 to 28.

humidity enabled fire fighters to bring the blazes under control.

"The rains were of inestimable benefit to cultivated land, most of which already had been sowed to grain," said Andrew Ross, agricultural expert at the University of Minnesota farm school.

"Most of the rain soaked into the ground, and will aid pastures greatly, which is especially valuable to farmers who were short of live stock feed."

"Grain sowed within the last few weeks will get a better start and conditions for corn planting were helped by the rain."

Although no rains were reported from several forest and brush fire regions, slackening winds and higher

POLICE INVESTIGATE TIP OF "SOMETHING APPARENTLY WRONG" IN HOME

WEXTER L. WAINWRIGHT HANG- ED SELF, 3 CHILDREN POISON- ED, CLUBBED AND HANGED

Syracuse, N. Y., April 20.—(U.P.)—A triple slaying and a suicide were discovered in a home today when police investigated a tip that "something apparently was wrong" in the house.

The body of Wexter L. Wainwright, 64, was found hanging in a hallway of the house. The bodies of the man's three children, Rosalind, 11, Richard, 9, and Jacqueline, 1, were found in a nearby room. They had been poisoned, clubbed and hanged.

Letters police found in the house indicated Wainwright had killed his children and then committed suicide.

The letters were addressed to Wainwright's wife, the police, the press and the public. In the one to Mrs. Wainwright, the aged man said: "They hollered so loud, they had to bang so no one would hear them. Oh, you are to blame for it."

Mrs. Wainwright was taken into custody shortly after the body was found. Along with her, police held Harry Blanchard, alias Donohue, of Chicago.

"He did it," Mrs. Wainwright told police when she was taken to the police station. She lit a cigarette and talked calmly at first.

After she had answered a few questions, Mrs. Wainwright fainted. Wainwright apparently killed his children yesterday. After they were dead, police said he must have sat down to gaze at their belongings, and to write the lengthy letters.

He served for a time as county attorney of Waseca county.

He was in Mankato today to appear in a law suit in which he is an attorney.

GOVERNOR OLSON TO VETO PROPOSAL OF LEGISLATURE

ONLY 36 HOURS REMAIN IN WHICH BILLS MAY BE PASSED

IF NOTHING ADOPTED, ALL CON- GRESSMEN ELECTED AT LARGE IN 1932

St. Paul, Minn., April 20.—Reapportionment—probably the major piece of legislation remaining before the Minnesota legislature—was thrown into a muddle today when Governor Floyd B. Olson announced he would veto the only proposal on which both houses could agree.

With only 36 hours remaining in which bills may be passed, the legislators will have to agree on some measure approved by the governor, to pass the present proposal over his veto, or to allow all congressmen in 1932 to be elected at large.

The second conference report, which was adopted Saturday night by the house of representatives, was passed this afternoon by the senate after a two-hour debate. Charges were made that policies had played their part in the division of Minneapolis into three new congressional districts and that the enacted measure was unconstitutional.

Informed that the senate had approved the house measure, Governor Olson announced he would veto the bill and send it back to both houses for their reconsideration.

There was speculation on whether the senate and house would attempt to pass the measure over the governor's veto but political observers doubted if this would be possible.

The senate today rejected a motion to appoint a new committee to make a third conference report. This may be resorted to as a last resort in view of the governor's impending veto.

The governor said he would veto the measure because it was unfair in division of populations.

Some of the districts vary more than 100,000 in population under the conference proposal.

Under the new division of the state, as passed by the house and senate, the nine congressional districts would be as follows:

First—Same as at present. Population, 228,596.

Second—Adds Lyon county from the present seventh district. Population, 251,734.

Third—Retains the present counties and adds the southern half of rural Hennepin and the fourth ward of the city of Minneapolis. Population, 291,601.

Fourth—Ramsay county, as at present.

Fifth—Part of Minneapolis, unchanged. Population, 344,500.

Sixth—Loses Lake of the Woods and Beltrami counties and gains Anoka, Isanti, Chicago, Mille Lacs, Kanabec and Pine from the present tenth. Population, 301,984.

Seventh—Loses Lyon county and adds the northern part of rural Hennepin together with the third and tenth wards of Minneapolis and Wright county out of the present tenth district. Population, 326,395.

Eighth—Unchanged. Population, 276,623.

Ninth—Adds Lake of the Woods and Beltrami counties. Population, 253,789.

After more than a month of discussion, the legislature agreed on a redistricting proposal. Originally the house passed a measure splitting up the present seventh congressional district, a farmer-labor stronghold. The senate passed its own measure which resembled the one finally passed except in the division of Minneapolis.

The first conference report which placed wards of Minneapolis and rural Hennepin county in four congressional districts, was not accepted by the house and a second report was drawn up. The house accepted it Saturday and the senate today.

The passage today came after more than two hours' debate during which Minneapolis legislators attacked the alignments as inspired by politics, unfair to Minneapolis and unconstitutional. The city was placed in three congressional districts with the urban population having a controlling vote in only one of the districts—the present fifth.

Senator Henry Spindler, Buffalo, argued that the conference report should be thrown out. He wanted a new committee named to work out a different alignment. His motion lost, 39 to 28.

humidity enabled fire fighters to bring the blazes under control.

"The rains were of inestimable benefit to cultivated land, most of which already had been sowed to grain," said Andrew Bossa, agricultural expert at the University of Minnesota farm school.

"Most of the rain soaked into the ground and will aid pastures greatly, which is especially valuable to farmers who were short of live stock feed."

"Grain sowed within the last few weeks will get a better start and conditions for corn planting were helped by the rain."

Although no rains were reported from several forest and brush fire regions, slackening winds and higher

Alcohol, Hygiene and the Public Schools

DIRECTOR OF PROHIBITION A. W. WOODCOCK has announced the publication of a factual monograph entitled, "Alcohol, Hygiene and the Public Schools." This monograph was prepared by the Division of Research and Public Information of the Prohibition Bureau for distribution to Federal and State officers and on request to anyone interested.

The monograph contains a digest of State and Federal laws on the subject of hygiene and scientific temperance teaching in public schools, with a history of the law of each state, showing the first law enacted on the subject and bringing the record of the law down to January 1, 1931. It is shown that 46 states of the United States have laws requiring the teaching in the public schools, of the effects of alcohol and other narcotics on the human system. Arizona has no law on the subject, while in Wyoming there is no mandatory law, but the matter is left to the discretion of the State Superintendent of Education.

In general these laws prescribe that in all schools supported wholly or in part by public funds certain courses in hygiene shall be given for specified lengths of time, with special reference to the influence of alcohol and other narcotics on the human system. At the discretion of the State Superintendent of Education the system is usually taught at any time after the third year in the grammar schools and prior to the second year in high schools. Dismissal from office of any Superintendent or teacher is directed in many states for failure or refusal to provide such instruction. In some states no certificates to teach are given to any persons who have not passed a special examination in hygiene, including the effect of alcohol and other narcotics on health and character.

Some states provide observance of Temperance Day, also known as Frances E. Willard Day. On this day a program shall be given by pupils under the guidance of teachers, emphasizing the more important results of temperance and total abstinence approached from various practical angles such as increased health and efficiency, greater productivity of brain and muscle, thrift, reduction of crime, lessening of child delinquency and decrease in insanity and disease.

The oldest law dealing with temperance education is found in an enactment of the Massachusetts legislature in 1789 and it is still in effect.

Director Woodcock calls attention to the fact that in the last ten years important and far reaching laboratory tests on human beings have been made to ascertain the effect of small quantities of alcohol on human efficiency. It is claimed the quantity of alcohol contained in one quart of 2.75 per cent beer or in one pint of 10 per cent wine has direct and positive results on the human system. For that reason there is a possible need for the revision of the textbooks to insure their accuracy in line with recent scientific development.

Local Boy Scout Drive Tomorrow

TOMORROW morning beginning at 9 o'clock the local men will make the annual drive for the Boy Scout fund for the coming year. These men are giving their time as well as money to make scouting a success in Brainerd. To carry on a program of this kind a certain amount of money is necessary. Every person should feel it a privilege to help with a movement of this kind which has as its objective the upbuilding of the youth of our cities. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Scouting is that ounce of prevention. If you are not approached by one of these men, be sure to call Mr. Wyatt to make your investment in your city's boys.

Brainerd has been divided into districts with two men in charge of each district, so that the drive can be accomplished in the shortest possible time. If you feel that the boys are of no concern to you tell the solicitors in a gentlemanly manner. This is a voluntary proposition and arguing will do no good. Ask all the questions you care to, the men will try to answer them.

These are the men who will give their time to the drive and ask your help: R. E. Wyatt, chairman of finance; G. W. Chadbourne, Dr. A. K. Cohen, A. C. Ebert, Frank B. Johnson, Geo. Sweet, Joseph Krause, Frank N. Russell, D. C. Gray, F. E. Jannek, S. R. Adair, J. H. Kinney, E. J. Hanson, R. L. Geist, Louis Knudsen, T. H. Schaefer, Carl Zapffe, Harry Greenberg, Walter P. Tyrholm, W. A. Spencer, Hector Hoening.

Let's put it over!

Popular Theatre Prices Advantageous

WITH the tourist season now almost on us, the thought of putting Brainerd foremost in the minds of our incoming guests once more brings the thought of moderate theatre prices for summer months to our minds.

With the advent of the new Palace theatre, it is true, we have a popular priced admission, and although the Paramount is offering a moderate price, the latter is only up to an early hour of the evening. The tourist driving in from the lake, the residents of the iron range area, the many out of town theatre goers from towns within a radius of 50 miles from Brainerd, arriving after the bargain price period, will be forced to pay the top price. To many tourists, especially, this will seem a discrimination, favoring the town theatre goer, who can easily attend early in the evening, while the tourist as a rule cannot arrive in time to avail himself of the opportunity.

The thought of moderate theatre prices should receive consideration of all those interested in community welfare.

PEOPLE are gaining more determination and backbone these days and resisting the advances of bandits. A Chicago head waiter of a hotel stood his ground with a shotgun. An aged watchman defied seven bandits. People of two towns fired on a fleeing bank bandit and aided in his capture, after he had robbed a bank at Harris, Minn.

THE spring cleanup movement has stimulated the work of painters, paper hangers, and others engaged in the renovation of homes.

REAL estate men anticipate a considerable movement in local property as well as farm and lake shore lands.

As Alfonso Passed Into Exile

This picture, sent by telegraph to London and radioed to New York, shows Alfonso XIII (left), dethroned King of Spain, escorted by police officials on his arrival at Marseilles en route to join Queen Victoria and their family in Paris. The last of the Bourbon dynasty was warmly received by an enthusiastic throng on debarkation from the cruiser Principe Alfonso, which had borne him on the first step of his exile from the land wherein he reigned as king.

Louis Chianese, who arrived from France on the liner Lafayette, where he had secreted himself with the assistance of a carpenter, in a case which he had labelled hats and consigned as part of a cargo to a New York department store, is shown above as he appeared when he crawled forth from his voluntary cage. His dreams of entering the United States via the "hat case route" are shattered as he must return to his native France.

From a prison cell to a place of power as President of Spain has been part of the spectacular career of Don Niceto Zamora, shown as he appeared while awaiting trial in Madrid for his part in the Spanish revolt last December. What is said to be the largest collection of newspapers in the world has been opened to the public in a newspaper museum at Aix-la-Chapelle, Germany. Among its collection of 150,000 newspapers are curiosities from all over the world, including an Eskimo paper from the middle of last century.

Alcohol, Hygiene and the Public Schools

DIRECTOR OF PROHIBITION A. W. WOODCOCK has announced the publication of a factual monograph entitled, "Alcohol, Hygiene and the Public Schools." This monograph was prepared by the Division of Research and Public Information of the Prohibition Bureau for distribution to Federal and State officers and on request to anyone interested.

The monograph contains a digest of State and Federal laws on the subject of hygiene and scientific temperance teaching in public schools, with a history of the law of each state, showing the first law enacted on the subject and bringing the record of the law down to January 1, 1931. It is shown that 46 states of the United States have laws requiring the teaching in the public schools, of the effects of alcohol and other narcotics on the human system. Arizona has no law on the subject, while in Wyoming there is no mandatory law, but the matter is left to the discretion of the State Superintendent of Education.

In general these laws prescribe that in all schools supported wholly or in part by public funds certain courses in hygiene shall be given for specified lengths of time, with special reference to the influence of alcohol and other narcotics on the human system. At the discretion of the State Superintendent of Education the system is usually taught at any time after the third year in the grammar schools and prior to the second year in high schools. Dismissal from office of any Superintendent or teacher is directed in many states for failure or refusal to provide such instruction. In some states no certificates to teach are given to any persons who have not passed a special examination in hygiene, including the effect of alcohol and other narcotics on health and character.

Some states provide observance of Temperance Day, also known as Frances E. Willard Day. On this day a program shall be given by pupils under the guidance of teachers, emphasizing the more important results of temperance and total abstinence approached from various practical angles such as increased health and efficiency, greater productivity of brain and muscle, thrift, reduction of crime, lessening of child delinquency and decrease in insanity and disease.

The oldest law dealing with temperance education is found in an enactment of the Massachusetts legislature in 1789 and it is still in effect.

Director Woodcock calls attention to the fact that in the last ten years important and far reaching laboratory tests on human beings have been made to ascertain the effect of small quantities of alcohol on human efficiency. It is claimed the quantity of alcohol contained in one quart of 2.75 per cent beer or in one pint of 10 per cent wine has direct and positive results on the human system. For that reason there is a possible need for the revision of the textbooks to insure their accuracy in line with recent scientific development.

Local Boy Scout Drive Tomorrow

TOMORROW morning beginning at 9 o'clock the local men will make the annual drive for the Boy Scout fund for the coming year. These men are giving their time as well as money to make scouting a success in Brainerd. To carry on a program of this kind a certain amount of money is necessary. Every person should feel it a privilege to help with a movement of this kind which has as its objective the upbuilding of the youth of our cities. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Scouting is that ounce of prevention. If you are not approached by one of these men, be sure to call Mr. Wyatt to make your investment in your city's boys.

Brainerd has been divided into districts with two men in charge of each district, so that the drive can be accomplished in the shortest possible time. If you feel that the boys are of no concern to you tell the solicitors in a gentlemanly manner. This is a voluntary proposition and arguing will do no good. Ask all the questions you care to, the men will try to answer them.

These are the men who will give their time to the drive and ask your help: R. E. Wyatt, chairman of finance; G. W. Chadbourne, Dr. A. K. Cohen, A. C. Ebert, Frank B. Johnson, Geo. Sweet, Joseph Krause, Frank N. Russell, D. C. Gray, F. E. Jannek, S. R. Adair, J. H. Kinney, E. J. Hanson, R. L. Geist, Louis Knudsen, T. H. Schaefer, Carl Zapffe, Harry Greenberg, Walter P. Tyrholm, W. A. Spencer, Hector Hoenig.

Let's put it over!

Popular Theatre Prices Advantageous

WITH the tourist season now almost on us, the thought of putting Brainerd foremost in the minds of our incoming guests once more brings the thought of moderate theatre prices for summer months to our minds.

With the advent of the new Palace theatre, it is true, we have a popular priced admission, and although the Paramount is offering a moderate price, the latter is only up to an early hour of the evening. The tourist driving in from the lake, the residents of the iron range area, the many out of town theatre goers from towns within a radius of 50 miles from Brainerd, arriving after the bargain price period, will be forced to pay the top price. To many tourists, especially, this will seem a discrimination, favoring the town theatre goer, who can easily attend early in the evening, while the tourist as a rule cannot arrive in time to avail himself of the opportunity.

The thought of moderate theatre prices should receive consideration of all those interested in community welfare.

PEOPLE are gaining more determination and backbone these days and resisting the advances of bandits. A Chicago head waiter of a hotel stood his ground with a shotgun. An aged watchman defied seven bandits. People of two towns fired on a fleeing bank bandit and aided in his capture, after he had robbed a bank at Harris, Minn.

THE spring cleanup movement has stimulated the work of painters, paper hangers, and others engaged in the renovation of homes.

REAL estate men anticipate a considerable movement in local property as well as farm and lake shore lands.

As Alfonso Passed Into Exile

This picture, sent by telegraph to London and radioed to New York, shows Alfonso XIII (left), deposed King of Spain, escorted by police officials on his arrival at Marseilles en route to join Queen Victoria and their family in Paris. The last of the Bourbon dynasty was warmly received by an enthusiastic throng on debarkation from the cruiser Principe Alfonso, which had borne him on the first step of his exile from the land wherein he reigned as king.

He Shipped as Cargo

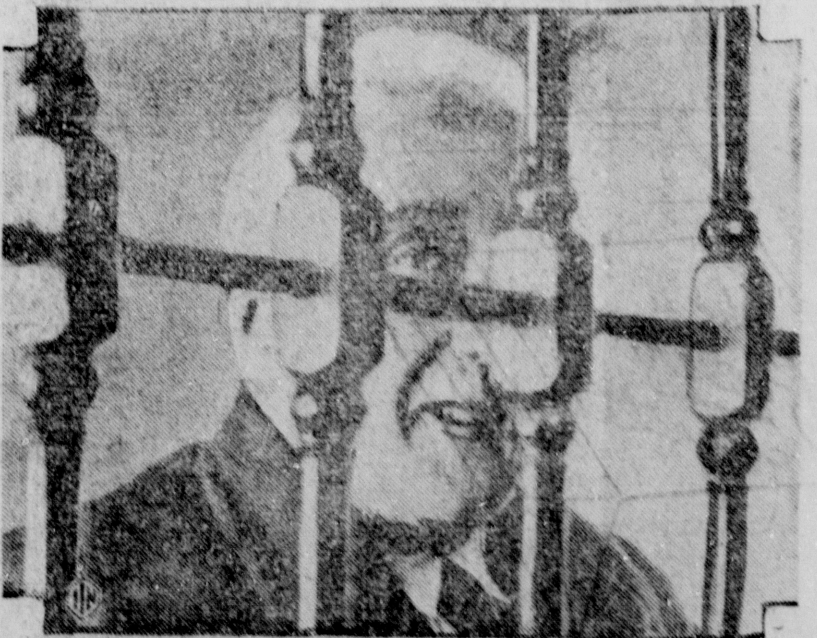

Louis Chianese, who arrived from France on the liner Lafayette, where he had secreted himself with the assistance of a carpenter, in a case which he had labelled hats and consigned as part of a cargo to a New York department store, is shown above as he appeared when he crawled forth from his voluntary cage. His dreams of entering the United States via the "hat case route" are shattered as he must return to his native France.

Victoria's Farewell to Spain

From Cell to President

From a prison cell to a place of power as President of Spain has been part of the spectacular career of Don Niceto Zamora, shown as he appeared while awaiting trial in Madrid for his part in the Spanish revolt last December. The anti-monarchistic wave which swept aside the Bourbon dynasty brought the Republican leader freedom and control.

What is said to be the largest collection of newspapers in the world has been opened to the public in a newspaper museum at Aix-la-Chapelle, Germany. Among its collection of 150,000 newspapers are curiosities from all over the world, including an Eskimo paper from the middle of last century.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL LOOKS FORWARD TO GOOD YEAR

AFTER ONE OF GREATEST OPENING WEEKS ON RECORD

TWICE IN FIRST 6 DAYS OF 1931
CAMPAIGN ATTENDANCE
RECORDS SMASHED

245,000 PERSONS CROWD INTO 8
PARKS; 1925 OPENING DAY
MARK WAS 233,000
By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, April 20.—After one of the greatest opening weeks in history, major league baseball today looked forward to one of its most prosperous years.

Twice in the first six days of the 1931 campaign the two major leagues smashed all attendance records for a single day. On the opening day the two leagues attracted approximately 245,000 persons into eight parks, surpassing the former opening day record of 233,000 made in 1925.

Yesterday the two leagues surpassed an old record when approximately 240,000 persons saw the eight games. The Yankees- Athletics game at Yankee Stadium, New York, drew 80,493, the second largest crowd ever to have seen a baseball game.

For the second time within a week, the Chicago Cubs played to an overflow crowd at Wrigley Field, with approximately 43,000 persons in attendance at the Cubs-Cardinals game yesterday.

The Yankees played to about 200,000 persons in their first five games at Yankee Stadium. The Cubs attracted about 150,000 to their first six games at Wrigley Field.

If these two teams—both formidable pennant contenders—should get into the world series, all attendance records for the post-season classic would certainly go into eclipse.

With another great pennant race in the offing, the National League threatens to approach its record of about 5½ million spectators, the most prosperous since the league was founded in 1876.

The Cubs are shooting for the individual record of about 1,500,000, which they missed last year by about 30,000 and in 1929 by about 15,000.

Weather conditions have played a prominent part in attracting the customers as only one game has been postponed since opening day.

New York, April 20.—The second largest crowd in the history of organized baseball watched yesterday's game between the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics at Yankee Stadium.

Official attendance figures were 80,493—the largest crowd which ever watched a major league game with the single exception of the Yankees-Athletic double-header on Sept. 9, 1928, when attendance figures reached 85,265.

RECORDS MADE IN PROGRAMS
USUALLY NEARLY EQUAL IN BOTH AFFAIRS

By LEO H. PETERSEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, April 20.—America's two greatest relay carnivals, the Penn and Drake games, will be held Friday and Saturday with approximately 6,000 athletes from 1,000 colleges and high schools competing.

At Philadelphia some 3,000 athletes representing institutions in all parts of the United States and some from Canada will gather for the thirty-eighth renewal of the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival while the Drake relays, held at Des Moines, Iowa, will draw approximately the same number of entrants.

The Penn carnival, the older of the two relays, and the Drake games are staged annually on the same days and are rated on a par. Records made in the different events on the program are usually nearly equal in both affairs.

Probably the outstanding event in the two relays will be the decathlon an Penn. Barney Berlinger, considered the leading decathlon star since the days of Jim Thorpe, heads a formidable list of athletes who will compete for the title. Berlinger has surpassed all of his old marks in work-outs this spring and many expect him to set a new record for the number of points scored.

Another feature of the Penn games will be the 100-yard dash which will see such stars as Allen East of Chicago, Johnny Haas of Minnesota, Arthur Watkins of Harvard, Al Kelly of Georgetown and Armand Hutson of Denison vying for the crown.

Ninety-five events, many of them for high school athletes, comprise the program for the Penn games.

Four western conference schools will be represented. They are Chicago, Minnesota, Ohio State and Indiana. The latter school will send John Hatfield, who won the 120-yard high hurdles championship in 1930.

AMERICAN ASSN. COLUMN IS IN PERFECT BALANCE

ST. PAUL, LOUISVILLE, MILWAUKEE GROUPED AT THE TOP

KANSAS CITY AND COLUMBUS ARE RATING 50-50 IN PERCENTAGE

(By United Press)

The American Association percentage column was in perfect balance today, with St. Paul, Louisville and Milwaukee grouped at the top, Kansas City and Columbus rating 50-50 and Toledo, Minneapolis and Indianapolis trailing together.

Yesterday's results reversed those of Saturday in every case but one, the Milwaukee Brewers making it two in a row from Toledo. Jonnard, Brewer pitcher, allowed the Mudhens only 7 hits, and he was credited with a 4 to 2 victory.

Lagging behind a 7 to 2 St. Paul lead in their half of the ninth, the Louisville Colonels staged a six-run rally to convert imminent defeat into an 8 to 7 victory.

Eight pitchers took turns on the mound at Indianapolis, where Minneapolis furnished the opposition. Together they allowed 25 safeties. Getting 14 of them, Indianapolis cashed in for 12 runs while the Millers were getting nine.

Kansas City made a gallant stand in the fading moments of their 3 to 4 defeat by Columbus. The Blues, trailing 1 to 4, got a run each in the eighth and ninth.

'STRANGLER' LEWIS MEETS MARSHALL AT KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., April 20.—(U.P.)—A heavyweight wrestling championship belt will be at stake when Ed (Strangler) Lewis of Los Angeles and Everett Marshall of La Junta, Colo., clinch here tonight.

Lewis was given the belt after a vest coast victory a few days ago and Marshall was hopeful of bringing the Strangler's brief possession of it to a close. They will wrestle to a finish, two out of three falls.

On motion of Representative Harold Atwood, of Minnesota, the bill recently passed by the senate was brought up for consideration and passed.

A senate amendment to the bill provides that the game and fish commissioner may allow the use of artificial lights in spearing rough fish in such areas as he deems proper.

Plank-Walking Crisis?

By HARDIN BURNLEY

EARLY baseball surveys indicate that pennant hopes of the Pittsburgh Pirates largely depend on how two new infielders—Tommy Thevenow and Bill Regan—meet expectations. Both were obtained in Winter deals engineered by Manager Jewel Ens, who obtained Thevenow from the Phillies in an exchange involving Shortstop "Dick" Bartlett, and then got Second Baseman Bill Regan from the Boston Red Sox. The late Sam Dreyfus, vice-president of the Pirates, was also a principal in these moves that may "make" a winner this year.

However, Regan was benched by an ankle injury soon after training started and the veteran George Grantham covered second in nearly all the citrus circuit games. It had been planned to use Regan at the keystone and Grantham as a pinch-hitter but now it looks as though Bill's bad ankle will indefinitely postpone that plan. Meanwhile, Gus Suhr has been shining at first base—fielding well and hitting admirably. Ens has high hopes that Suhr will come through big in this, his second year as a Pirate.

Regan's hard luck probably was fortunate for Grantham because, though George might have completely outdone Suhr for the regular initial sack job, training games indicate that the vet could not have supplanted the youngster at first. And at second, Grantham has been showing surprisingly fine form. However, he'll have to continue a hot pace to keep that station when Regan's ankle is O. K. again.

Thevenow seems to have completely recovered from an illness which handicapped him so much with the Phillies, and seemed, for a time, to doom his career after his brilliant start with the St. Louis Cardinals.

With Thevenow at short and "Pie" Traynor at third, Ens believes he will round out a speedy, peppy infield. And, with the Waner brothers in good shape, and Comorosky in the outposts, the Pirates' team more formidable than they did in 1930. It was an injury jinx which crippled 'em last year at that.

Manager Ens realizes that this is a most critical year for the team and his own future. Pittsburgh must land at least among the first four in club standings this season or else several will have to walk the plank. Last year, when the team fell into the second division, the gate receipts at the Smokey City began to resemble those of Max Schmeling's Joe-Jacobson exhibition tour. So "Boss" Ens knows he must produce a winner in order to hold his job.

Collegiate Cauliflowers

By HARDIN BURNLEY

CONTEMPT commonly is the lot of collegians who try to punch their ways to fame and fortune in the rough, rude and raucous prize ring. Most of them get nowhere, not even such football terrors as Monte Munn or Sully Montgomery. They just can't stand the gaff of professional boxing. As any hard-boiled old fight fan will tell you: "Even the colleges can't turn out a guy dumb enough to make a first-class scrapper; all education teaches 'em is to quit as soon as the girl gets real rough. That's why the college guys ought to stick to golf, tennis, backgammon, bridge and polo. Why 'd in on a mug's game?"

However, the records, tradition, and fan prejudice to the contrary, some college athlete may yet scale the fistic heights and two of them are heading in that direction at present.

Justin Sirutis, New York University and amateur heavyweight, has been toting rivals for more than a year with the monotonous brevity of a Primo Carnera before they matched the Italian giant becoming a professional within a year provided his K. O. course continues. Justin (pronounced "Yus-tin") is still two or three years removed from real ring class. Many a college heavyweight has been ruined by rushing his pro fight career too rapidly before becoming properly toughened to the

AFTER ONE OF GREATEST OPENING WEEKS ON RECORD

TWICE IN FIRST 6 DAYS OF 1931 CAMPAIGN ATTENDANCE RECORDS SMASHED

245,000 PERSONS CROWD INTO 8 PARKS; 1925 OPENING DAY MARK WAS 233,000
By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, April 20.—After one of the greatest opening weeks in history, major league baseball today looked forward to one of its most prosperous years.

Twice in the first six days of the 1931 campaign the two major leagues smashed all attendance records for a single day. On the opening day the two leagues attracted approximately 245,000 persons into eight parks, surpassing the former opening day record of 233,000 made in 1925.

Yesterday the two leagues surpassed an old record when approximately 240,000 persons saw the eight games. The Yankees- Athletics game at Yankee Stadium, New York, drew 80,403, the second largest crowd ever to have seen a baseball game.

For the second time within a week, the Chicago Cubs played to an overflow crowd at Wrigley Field, with approximately 43,000 persons in attendance at the Cubs-Cardinals game yesterday.

The Yankees played to about 200,000 persons in their first five games at Yankee Stadium. The Cubs attracted about 150,000 to their first six games at Wrigley Field.

If these two teams—both formidable pennant contenders—should get into the world series, all attendance records for the post-season classic would certainly go into eclipse.

With another great pennant race in the offing, the National League threatens to approach its record of about 5½ million spectators, the most prosperous since the league was founded in 1876.

The Cubs are shooting for the individual record of about 1,500,000, which they missed last year by about 30,000 and in 1929 by about 15,000.

Weather conditions have played a prominent part in attracting the customers as only one game has been postponed since opening day.

New York, April 20.—The second largest crowd in the history of organized baseball watched yesterday's game between the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics at Yankee Stadium.

Official attendance figures were 80,403—the largest crowd which ever watched a major league game with the single exception of the Yankees-Athletic double-header on Sept. 9, 1928, when attendance figures reached 85,265.

Charley Root Pitches 4 to 1 Victory Over St. Louis Cardinals

Yesterday's Hero—Charley Root, who pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 4 to 1 victory over St. Louis, allowing only 6 hits and pitching shut-out ball during the final 8 innings. It was the first defeat of the season for the Cardinals, 1930 National league champions.

6,000 ATHLETES, 1,000 COLLEGES, SCHOOLS SEND MEN

GAMES STAGED ANNUALLY AND ON PAR FOR ATTRACTING INTEREST

RECORDS MADE IN PROGRAMS USUALLY NEARLY EQUAL IN BOTH AFFAIRS

By LEO H. PETERSEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, April 20.—America's two greatest relay carnivals, the Penn and Drake games, will be held Friday and Saturday with approximately 6,000 athletes from 1,000 colleges and high schools competing.

At Philadelphia some 3,000 athletes representing institutions in all parts of the United States and some from Canada will gather for the thirty-eighth renewal of the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival while the Drake relays, held at Des Moines, Iowa, will draw approximately the same number of entrants.

The Penn carnival, the older of the two relays, and the Drake games are staged annually on the same days and are rated on a par. Records made in the different events on the program are usually nearly equal in both affairs.

Probably the outstanding event in the two relays will be the decathlon on Penn. Barney Berlinger, considered the leading decathlon star since the days of Jim Thorpe, heads a formidable list of athletes who will compete for the title. Berlinger has surpassed all of his old marks in workouts this spring and many expect him to set a new record for the number of points scored.

Another feature of the Penn games will be the 100-yard dash which will see such stars as Allen East of Chicago, Johnny Haas of Minnesota, Arthur Watkins of Harvard, Al Kelly of Georgetown and Armand Hutson of Denison vying for the crown.

Ninety-five events, many of them for high school athletes, comprise the program for the Penn games.

Four western conference schools will be represented. They are Chicago, Minnesota, Ohio State and Indiana. The latter school will send John Hatfield, who won the 120-yard high hurdles championship in 1930.

AMERICAN ASSN. COLUMN IS IN PERFECT BALANCE

ST. PAUL, LOUISVILLE, MILWAUKEE GROUPED AT THE TOP

KANSAS CITY AND COLUMBUS ARE RATING 50-50 IN PERCENTAGE

(By United Press)
The American Association percentage column was in perfect balance today, with St. Paul, Louisville and Milwaukee grouped at the top, Kansas City and Columbus rating 50-50 and Toledo, Minneapolis and Indianapolis trailing together.

Yesterday's results reversed those of Saturday in every case but one, the Milwaukee Brewers making it two in a row from Toledo. Jonnard, Brewer pitcher, allowed the Mudhens only 7 hits, and he was credited with a 4 to 2 victory.

Lagging behind a 7 to 2 St. Paul lead in their half of the ninth, the Louisville Colonels staged a six-run rally to convert imminent defeat into an 8 to 7 victory.

CITY RIFLE CLUB GRANTED CHARTER

Now One of More Than 2,500 Clubs
Affiliated With National
Rifle Association

The Brainerd Rifle club has been issued a charter by the National Rifle Association, according to announcement made here today. The officers of the club are:

President—Byron Anderson.
Vice President—John P. Goedderz.
Treasurer—J. J. Murphy.
Secretary—James K. Tinkelpaugh.
Executive Officer—P. H. Rardin.

The Brainerd Rifle club is one of more than 2,500 active rifle shooting clubs affiliated with the National Rifle Association. The members will now start practice under the coaching of Mr. Rardin, executive officer.

Many civilian rifle clubs, such as the Brainerd Rifle club, are chartered and functioning in practically every state of the country. Junior clubs are operating in high schools, summer camps, Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s. Industrial plants, American Legion posts, churches, community centers and other organizations have senior clubs operating under charters of the National Rifle Association.

Members of the Brainerd Rifle club will fire for medals awarded by the National Rifle Association and matches will probably be arranged in the near future with nearby clubs.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago

April 18, 1906

The city of San Francisco was practically wrecked by an earthquake this morning. Several thousands of dollars in building were lost, and the loss of life is reported to be great. Fires are raging, and owing to the scarcity of water, are practically beyond control. Berkeley is also reported in flames.

A. L. Baker, organizer of the State Federation of Labor, is in the city and held a very enthusiastic meeting at the Trades and Labor last night. He gave a talk along labor lines and will put in some time in the city reviving defunct labor organizations and organizing other trades where possible.

The building of the Pine River dam is going on steadily, and the weather of early April seems to have been favorable for work. A good force of men is employed. The abutment wall on the south side of the river and seven channel piers covering more than half the width of the stream, are already built. The old dam has been all removed, the foundation floor is clear and the men are setting up the big moulds, building scaffolds, and laying track ready to put in the concrete piers of the remaining part.

E. D. French of St. Cloud, deputy revenue collector for this district, was in the city yesterday and today. Under a new ruling of the department he is compelled to visit every brewery in the district once each 60 days.

April 20, 1906

Parker Waite came near losing a valuable team in Gull river yesterday by the giving away of the bridge over that stream at the lower end of Gull Lake. The bridge collapsed while he was crossing with a load of wheat and the team with its load was precipitated into the water.

Prof. Hartley left today noon for St. Cloud to attend the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Teachers' Association of which he is president. A number of teachers expect to go down tonight.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brundette was accidentally shot to death yesterday. Mr. Brundette was out hunting, and on returning home set the rifle down beside the door. A little five year old son picked it up, and the father told him to take it in the house. As he entered the door it accidentally discharged, the bullet entering the forehead of the little girl. She died a few hours later.

Purdue university made an attempt to debar Eddie Boyle of Brainerd from playing baseball with the University of Indiana on the ground of professionalism. The claim was that he played with Jasper independent team when professionals were on the team. It was proven that he played only after the team was reorganized on an amateur basis. He is one of the strongest players on the team, and his loss would have crippled Indiana.

The flood at Crookston, caused by the overflowing of the banks of the Red river is subsiding. Business in the milling district has been entirely suspended and many of the basements have been flooded.

There has been considerable talk regarding building a lock in the dam across the Mississippi river here. Many would like to purchase launches if they could keep them on the river near the city, but if they must go to the dam every time, there would be more work than pleasure in it.

HOME TALENT PROGRAM GIVEN

Dr. G. I. Badeaux and Choral Club
Sing at Brainerd Musical
Club

(Contributed)

The storm on Saturday afternoon somewhat delayed the program but did not dampen the spirits of the entertainers nor the enthusiasm of the audience at the last meeting of the Musical Club, a social meeting held at the Ramsford hotel dining room.

After a short business session, Dr. G. I. Badeaux sang "A May Morning" by Denza and "Melland in the Wood" by Alma Goetz. As usual, he was enthusiastically recalled and gave "Where Blossoms Grow" by San Souci. Another engagement prevented him from attending to the request for a second encore that was indicated by persistent applause.

The president, Mrs. E. J. Quinn, then introduced the Choral Club as "Our Choral Club," explaining that the right to the use of the personal pronoun had been won by extending a helping hand to that organization when it was about to disband for lack of funds.

The Choral Club, led by Miss Edith Drexler, then gave of its best in a group of three songs: "Hark What a Burst of Sound" by Abt, "Still as the Night" by Bohn, and "Fairy Pipes" by Brewer. Their encore was the ever popular "Hunting Song" by Mendelssohn. Tea was then announced, and the social committee, with Mrs. John Carlson chairman, served delicious refreshments from as pretty a tea-table as one would care to see. It was not only perfectly appointed, but artistically decorated, the decorations being climaxed by a beautiful center piece of giant snapdragon of many colors. Two past presidents, Mrs. H. I. Cohen and Mrs. D. M. Clark, poured.

During the social hour, the Choral Club graciously gave two more numbers. The first one, "June" by McFadyen, was arranged for the Choral Club from a solo by their talented accompanist, Mrs. Louis Knudsen.

The second number was the "Flower of Dreams" by Clokey, which gave the Choral Club of Northfield first place and put our own Choral Club in second place when the Federation contest was held in Minneapolis.

In a burst of song and social festivity, a very successful Musical Club year was brought to a close.

KING OF SIAM NOW ENROUTE TO NEW YORK

ACCOMPANIED BY 14 MEMBERS OF HIS ROYAL
FAMILY

WILL HAVE AMERICAN PHYSICIANS REMOVE CATARACT FROM EYE

By EARL J. JOHNSON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard Royal Siamese Train, En Route to New York, April 20.—One of the few remaining absolute monarchs in the world, King Prajadipok, the 98-pound ruler of Siam, rode today through the land of the free, en route to New York where 14 members of his royal family are taking him to have American physicians remove a cataract from his eye.

With the king, the first Asiatic ruler ever to visit the United States, was his queen, Rambha, acclaimed the most beautiful woman in the Orient.

Representatives of the Canadian government turned their royal charges over to the United States when the special train crossed the border line at Portal, N. D., shortly before last midnight.

The king, mildly ill of malaria and bronchitis, remained secluded in his private car most of the time as the train sped across Canada and into the United States. Queen Rambha elected to remain with him most of the time. They dined at division points. Other members of their party appeared more frequently to accept the cheers and welcomes of thousands of Americans in two countries.

On this side of the border, the king and Prince Svasti were received by Richard Southgate, emissary of President Hoover.

The train stopped about 30 minutes in Portal. Then the train was away on its 600-mile run to Minneapolis, the next stop after Portal on the eventful trip to Washington.

The capital is the only American city in which the king and queen will not travel incognito and actually will appear as the king and queen of Siam.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 20.—Because of the illness of King Prajadipok of Siam, no formal welcome is planned when he arrives in the Twin Cities tonight.

The special train carrying the royal entourage will make only a short stop here and in St. Paul before proceeding to Chicago.

Summing It Up

The best cure for worry, depression, melancholy, brooding is to go deliberately forth and try to lift with one's sympathy the gloom of somebody else.

Judge Levi M. Hall is Named Hennepin County District Judge

St. Paul, April 20.—(U.P.)—Judge Levi M. Hall, Minneapolis municipal court official, today was appointed Hennepin county district judge to succeed Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye, who was sworn in as recess federal judge for Minnesota.

Judge Hall's appointment was announced by Governor Floyd B. Olson as Judge Nordbye took his oath of office.

William C. Larson, assistant Hennepin county attorney, was appointed Minneapolis municipal judge to succeed Judge Hall.

Judge Hall and Governor Olson were high school classmates, both having been graduated from North high school. The judge was president of the senior class while the present governor was vice president.

Judge Nordbye's oath of office settles until the next session of congress, at least, a contest between the administration and Senator Thomas D. Schall over the appointment of a fourth federal judge in Minnesota. The senator originally asked the appointment of Ernest Michel, Minneapolis attorney.

The administration refused to appoint Michel and sent the appointment of Judge Nordbye to the senate for confirmation. In the last days of the session, the confirmation was held up and no action was taken by the senate.

President Hoover then named Judge Nordbye in a recess appointment to hold office until the December session of congress. He will serve without pay if his appointment is not confirmed then.

Why use

the "BLINDFOLD" METHOD?

Like many investors you would like to own some good corporate stocks. But in view of the limited time and facilities you have available to devote to such matters, how will you watch these securities after purchasing them? Will you merely hold your stocks "blindfolded" without adequate facilities to carefully follow their earning trends and general investment position in the future?

The better, surer way of corporate stock investment is to purchase Frontenac Trust Shares—a restricted management trust. Here you buy an ownership interest in widely diversified and carefully selected corporate stocks which are under permanent and expert supervision. Twelve officials of five long-established Northwest investment institutions and a fully equipped statistical and research department constantly review current economic and industrial factors in relation to the portfolio stocks of this investment trust. These supervisory facilities will enable Frontenac to replace with sounder issues any stocks which show indications of unfavorable earnings prospects. As specifically stated by the management, however, stocks will be held for the long term in so far as possible with no attempt being made to profit by market fluctuations. The flexibility found in this investment trust assures share holders that a high standard in the portfolio will always be maintained.

When the easiest way is the best way . . .

There are no two ways about it! Certainly the easiest way to get the most for every dollar you spend is to buy products that you know about through the advertisements in your daily paper. You don't have to go out and look for buying opportunities. The advertisements bring them to you. And all you need do is consider the facts, compare values and decide on the soap or the sedan that best fits your judgment and your pocketbook.

Certainly the best way of making your money go farthest is to buy merchandise of proved value. Advertised merchandise. Merchandise that is bought and used by many people. Merchandise that must be superlatively good enough for its maker to keep calling it to the attention of people day after day and year after year.

This is the service—of convenience and profit—that the advertisements offer you every day. It will pay you to read them regularly and take advantage of everything they can do for you.

CITY RIFLE CLUB GRANTED CHARTER

Now One of More Than 2,500 Clubs
Affiliated With National
Rifle Association

The Brainerd Rifle club has been issued a charter by the National Rifle Association, according to announcement made here today. The officers of the club are:

President—Byron Anderson.
Vice President—John P. Goedderz.
Treasurer—J. J. Murphy.
Secretary—James K. Tinkelpaugh.
Executive Officer—P. H. Rardin.

The Brainerd Rifle club is one of more than 2,500 active rifle shooting clubs affiliated with the National Rifle Association. The members will now start practice under the coaching of Mr. Rardin, executive officer.

Many civilian rifle clubs, such as the Brainerd Rifle club, are chartered and functioning in practically every state of the country. Junior clubs are operating in high schools, summer camps, Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s. Industrial plants, American Legion posts, churches, community centers and other organizations have senior clubs operating under charters of the National Rifle Association.

Members of the Brainerd Rifle club will fire for medals awarded by the National Rifle Association and matches will probably be arranged in the near future with nearby clubs.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago

April 18, 1906

The city of San Francisco was practically wrecked by an earthquake this morning. Several thousands of dollars in building were lost, and the loss of life is reported to be great. Fires are raging, and owing to the scarcity of water, are practically beyond control. Berkeley is also reported in flames.

A. L. Baker, organizer of the State Federation of Labor, is in the city and held a very enthusiastic meeting at the Trades and Labor last night. He gave a talk along labor lines and will put in some time in the city reviving defunct labor organizations and organizing other trades where possible.

The building of the Pine River dam is going on steadily, and the weather of early April seems to have been favorable for work. A good force of men is employed. The abutment wall on the south side of the river and seven channel piers covering more than half the width of the stream, are already built. The old dam has been all removed, the foundation floor is clear and the men are setting up the big moulds, building scaffolds, and laying track ready to put in the concrete piers of the remaining part.

E. D. French of St. Cloud, deputy revenue collector for this district, was in the city yesterday and today. Under a new ruling of the department he is compelled to visit every brewery in the district once each 60 days.

April 20, 1906

Parker Waite came near losing a valuable team in Gull river yesterday by the giving away of the bridge over that stream at the lower end of Gull Lake. The bridge collapsed while he was crossing with a load of wheat and the team with its load was precipitated into the water.

Prof. Hartley left today noon for St. Cloud to attend the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Teachers Association of which he is president. A number of teachers expect to go down tonight.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brundette was accidentally shot to death yesterday. Mr. Brundette was out hunting, and on returning home set the rifle down beside the door. A little five year old son picked it up, and the father told him to take it in the house. As he entered the door it accidentally discharged, the bullet entering the forehead of the little girl. She died a few hours later.

Purdue university made an attempt to debar Eddie Boyle of Brainerd from playing baseball with the University of Indiana on the ground of professionalism. The claim was that he played with Jasper Independent team when professionals were on the team. It was proven that he played only after the team was reorganized on an amateur basis. He is one of the strongest players on the team, and his loss would have crippled Indiana.

The flood at Crookston, caused by the overflowing of the banks of the Red river is subsiding. Business in the milling district has been entirely suspended and many of the basements have been flooded.

There has been considerable talk regarding building a lock in the dam across the Mississippi river here. Many would like to purchase launches if they could keep them on the river near the city, but if they must go to the dam every time, there would be more work than pleasure in it.

HOME TALENT PROGRAM GIVEN

Dr. G. I. Badeaux and Choral Club
Sing at Brainerd Musical
Club

(Contributed)

The storm on Saturday afternoon somewhat delayed the program but did not dampen the spirits of the entertainers nor the enthusiasm of the audience at the last meeting of the Musical Club, a social meeting held at the Ramsford hotel dining room.

After a short business session, Dr. G. I. Badeaux sang "A May Morning," by Denza and "Mellande in the Wood," by Alma Goetz. As usual, he was enthusiastically recalled and gave "Where Blossoms Grow," by San Souci. Another engagement prevented him from attending to the request for a second encore that was indicated by persistent applause.

The president, Mrs. E. J. Quinn, then introduced the Choral Club as "Our Choral Club," explaining that the right to the use of the personal program had been won by extending a helping hand to that organization when it was about to disband for lack of funds.

The Choral Club, led by Miss Effie Drexler, then gave of its best in a group of three songs: "Hark What a Burst of Sound" by Abt, "Still as the Night" by Bohn, and "Fairy Pipers" by Brewer. Their encore was the ever popular "Hunting Song" by Mendelssohn. Tea was then announced, and the social committee, with Mrs. John Carlson chairman, served delicious refreshments from as pretty a tea-table as one would care to see. It was not only perfectly appointed, but artistically decorated, the decorations being climaxed by a beautiful centerpiece of giant snapdragons of many colors. Two past presidents, Mrs. H. I. Cohen and Mrs. D. M. Clark, poured.

During the social hour, the Choral Club graciously gave two more numbers. The first one, "June" by McFadyen, was arranged for the Choral Club from a solo by their talented accompanist, Mrs. Louis Knudsen.

The second number was the "Flower of Dreams" by Clokey, which gave the Choral Club of Northfield first place and put our own Choral Club in second place when the Federation contest was held in Minneapolis.

In a burst of song and social festivity, a very successful Musical Club year was brought to a close.

KING OF SIAM NOW ENROUTE TO NEW YORK

ACCOMPANIED BY 14 MEMBERS OF HIS ROYAL
FAMILY

WILL HAVE AMERICAN PHYSICIANS
REMOVE CATARACT
FROM EYE

By EARL J. JOHNSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard Royal Siamese Train, En Route to New York, April 20.—One of the few remaining absolute monarchs in the world, King Prajadipok, the 98-pound ruler of Siam, rode today through the land of the free, en route to New York where 14 members of his royal family are taking him to have American physicians remove a cataract from his eye.

With the king, the first Asiatic ruler ever to visit the United States, was his queen, Rambha, acclaimed the most beautiful woman in the Orient.

Representatives of the Canadian government turned their royal charges over to the United States when the special train crossed the border line at Port Huron, N. D., shortly before last midnight.

The king, mildly ill of malaria and bronchitis, remained secluded in his private car most of the time as the train sped across Canada and into the United States. Queen Rambha elected to remain with him most of the time. They detrained at division points. Other members of their party appeared more frequently to accept the cheers and welcomes of thousands of Americans in two countries.

On this side of the border, the king and Prince Svaati were received by Richard Southgate, emissary of President Hoover.

The train stopped about 30 minutes in Port Huron. Then the train was away on its 600-mile run to Minneapolis, the next stop after Port Huron on the eventful trip to Washington.

The capital is the only American city in which the king and queen will not travel incognito and actually will appear as the king and queen of Siam.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 20.—Because of the illness of King Prajadipok of Siam, no formal welcome is planned when he arrives in the Twin Cities tonight.

The special train carrying the royal entourage will make only a short stop here and in St. Paul before proceeding to Chicago.

Summing It Up

The best cure for worry, depression, melancholy, brooding is to go deliberately forth and try to lift with one's sympathy the gloom of somebody else.

Judge Levi M. Hall is Named Hennepin County District Judge

St. Paul, April 20.—(U.P.)—Judge Levi M. Hall, Minneapolis municipal court official, today was appointed Hennepin county district judge to succeed Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye, who was sworn in as recess federal judge for Minnesota.

Judge Hall's appointment was announced by Governor Floyd B. Olson as Judge Nordbye took his oath of office. William C. Larson, assistant Hennepin county attorney, was appointed Minneapolis municipal judge to succeed Judge Hall.

Judge Hall and Governor Olson were high school classmates, both having been graduated from North high school. The judge was president of the senior class while the present governor was vice president.

Judge Nordbye's oath of office settles until the next session of congress, at least, a contest between the administration and Senator Thomas D. Schall over the appointment of a fourth federal judge in Minnesota. The senator originally asked the appointment of Ernest Michel, Minneapolis attorney.

The administration refused to appoint Michel and sent the appointment of Judge Nordbye to the senate for confirmation. In the last days of the session, the confirmation was held up and no action was taken by the senate.

President Hoover then named Judge Nordbye in a recess appointment to hold office until the December session of congress. He will serve without pay if his appointment is not confirmed then.

WORK WITH PARK BOARD

Mrs. E. J. Quinn, President of Club,
Sponsor of Beautification
Idea

Mrs. D. E. Whitney was named chairman of a committee, composed of
past presidents of the Brainerd Musical Club, to work with the Park Board
in the beautification of Gregory Park.

Each past president of the club,
there being eleven in the city, has consented to purchase a tree for the park. Each one will pick their own type and kind of tree.

Plans were discussed quite fully at the meeting of the Musical Club last
Saturday afternoon at the Ransford
Hotel. It was also suggested that they get together with the members of the Park Board and talk over a five-year
plan of beautification for Gregory
Park, in order that all planting, etc.,
be done after a definite plan instead
of a "hit and miss" manner.

Mrs. E. J. Quinn, president of the Musical Club, was sponsor of this plan.
The plan, as suggested by Mrs. Quinn,
is the starting of planting of better
trees in Brainerd.

"I Have Found It"
The word "Eureka" is Greek, more correctly "Heureka," meaning "I have found it." It is an exclamation of de-has been made. Eureka is the motto of California, in allusion to the gold discovered there.

READ ANDERSON RESOLUTIONS

Association Not Interested in Acquiring of Additional Property;
Three Directors Re-elected

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Evergreen Cemetery association G. N. Grant was elected president of the board; W. A. M.
Johnstone, vice president; F. A. Farrar, treasurer; G. W. Chadbourne, secretary and Robert Jaeger, superintendent for the ensuing year.

The board of directors includes G.
N. Grant, W. A. M. Johnstone, F. A.
Farrar, G. W. Chadbourne, J. W.
Koop, E. P. Shipp, G. F. Mitchell, Joe
Kiebler, George Bislar, and W. H.
Cleary. The terms of J. W. Koop, G.
N. Grant and G. F. Mitchell expired at this meeting but they were elected to another three year term.

When the name of J. P. Anderson, a member of the board of directors who died last fall, was read all the members arose to their feet and remained standing while the secretary read the preamble and resolutions of his decease. A copy of the resolutions were put in the minutes of the meeting and another copy presented the wife and family of Mr. Anderson as a token of respect to the memory of the deceased member.

The grounds committee reported that there were quite a number of half lots in the cemetery that had no record of anything being done to them for a good many years and recommended that an effort be made to secure these by buying or agreeing to give perpetual care to the half that is occupied. The matter of setting out trees along the roadway inside the fences of the cemetery by an expert landscape gardener was referred to the grounds committee.

Two communications were received regarding the selling of additional land to the association but the members were not interested in acquiring more property at the present time.

An amount of $125 was allowed for flowers for Decoration day at the cemetery and $25 was appropriated for the decoration of G. A. R. graves.
The location of trees, shrubs and the paving of certain avenues was discussed and referred to the grounds committee.

State P. T. A. Meet

SCHEDULED FOR MAY 1

Entertainment to be Entirely Home Talent; Hopes Are for Capacity House

The Central P. T. A. council has announced that on Friday, May 1, they will give an entertainment in the Brainerd high school auditorium for the purpose of raising funds to help defray any expenses which may arise in connection with the State
Parent Teachers Association convention to be held in Brainerd in October.

The Central P. T. A. council is composed of the executive boards of the seven city associations. Robert
Campbell is president of the council,
Mrs. L. F. Hohman vice president, Mrs. J. C. Alexander secretary and treasurer. The purpose of the council is to afford an opportunity for the local association to compare methods, to stimulate friendly competition,
to receive suggestions on procedure,
and to unite upon different forms of work. The council has formed a connecting link between local associations and the district, state and national associations.

For this reason, it has seemed advisable for the various P. T. A.'s to try and finance the convention through the central council. To this end, every P. T. A. is contributing one or two numbers to the entertainment, and will assist in the selling of tickets. As this is a city wide affair, an dthe tickets to be very reasonable,
the entertainment of the best and entirely home talent, the council hopes to fill the auditorium to capacity.
The support of all parents and friends is most earnestly solicited in this enterprise.

Committees appointed are: general arrangements committee with R. T.
Campbell as chairman; program arrangements under the management of Mrs. Sam Newman; distribution of tickets committee with Mrs. L. F.
Hohman as chairman; George Falconer chairman of stage committee, and Mrs. Harold Forsberg in charge of the usher.

All are asked to please keep this date in mind, Friday, May 1, and make no other arrangements for this evening.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORY OF TODAY

Tennis balls should be served without being roasted, avers
Frank G. Hall, 209 North Fourth answered a call to his home yesterday noon when smoke began to pour from the oven in the Hall kitchen.

The roast had been placed in the oven and the fire turned on low in order to insure a well cooked roast over a slow fire.
That was all well and good until "sonny" came home from his early morning round of tennis sporting a couple of wet tennis balls due to the heavy rain of the day before.

He placed the balls in the oven and turned up the fire so as to dry the balls the quicker.

The result?

The house was filled with smoke, the tennis balls were considerably drier, the roast was reduced to the size of a tennis ball and the fire department got a workout without any serious results.

WORK WITH PARK BOARD

Mrs. E. J. Quinn, President of Club,
Sponsor of Beautification
Idea

Mrs. D. E. Whitney was named
chairman of a committee, composed of
past presidents of the Brainerd Musical Club, to work with the Park Board
in the beautification of Gregory Park.

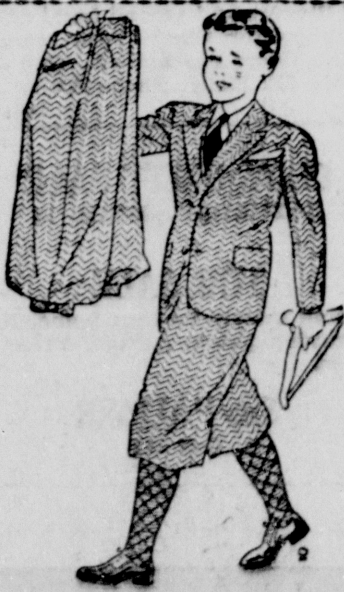

Each past president of the club,
there being eleven in the city, has
consented to purchase a tree for the park. Each one will pick their own
type and kind of tree.

Plans were discussed quite fully at the meeting of the Musical Club last
Saturday afternoon at the Ransford
Hotel. It was also suggested that they get together with the members of the Park Board and talk over a five-year
plan of beautification for Gregory
Park, in order that all planting, etc.,
be done after a definite plan instead
of a "hit and miss" manner.

Mrs. E. J. Quinn, president of the Musical Club, was sponsor of this plan.
The plan, as suggested by Mrs. Quinn,
is the starting of planting of better
trees in Brainerd.

discovered there.

"MURDER AT EAGLES NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Bhima Martin, called "Bim," young reporter, is anxious to aid her father's small-town newspaper, the Kingcliffe Banner. She rejects the marriage proposals of Walter Vance, Assistant Chief of Police. Walter asks Bim not to attend a party given by wealthy Emily Hardy.

CHAPTER II.

EMILY HARDY was the leader and center of activity in the little society colony which lived on and about Pine Hill.

Nature had given her a passable amount of good looks of the somewhat full-blown type; life had given her a husband, Peter Hardy, who was little and gray and mousy and immensely rich and who had learned to keep his place and sign checks without asking stupid questions; experience had given her an off-hand, hail-fellow manner which sometimes was described as "gracious" and boredom had given her a craving for celebrities.

She was a careless hostess, all things considered; she opened her enormous house, put at the beck and call of everyone who entered there, her servants, her food, her wine cellar, her rambling landscaped gardens and her bathing beach at the foot of Eagle's Nest on the east side of the mountain. After which she left her guests pretty much to themselves, popping up occasionally to boom in her light baritone "Everybody happy?"

Thrill Hunter.

On Lowland Drive, which crossed the grounds of Eagle's Nest and went on up the mountain in a southerly direction, there resided other members of the colony—the Frosts; Bunny Baird, the artist; the Trents.

It was the usual thing when Emily Hardy entertained a string of motors to rush up from New York, thirty miles down the river. And sometimes Eagle's Nest was overrun with reporters and camera-men and even movie men, for young Mrs. Hardy gathered in noted ones from all over the world and cared not a whit that some of them were rather more notorious than noted, just so they promised a break in the monotony of living.

On the evening that Bim strolled up the drive and across the terrace to keep her dinner engagement, however, there were present only the members of the Pine Hill colony, together with the guests of honor, the Baron and the Baroness von Wiese.

Bim felt a thrill of anticipation as she laid aside her cape—in her one and only evening wrap—in a little room at the back of the long, wide corridor which ran the length of the house, nodded to Imogene, Emily's personal maid who was in attendance there, and followed the sound of voices to the library.

Emily boomed a greeting and turned Bim over to the Baron, a bald-headed and decrepit old fellow who stumbled up from his chair and nearly fell over as he bent from the waist to kiss the back of Bim's hand, muttering the while his pleasure in a language not quite German and not quite French and not quite English.

The old man sank back heavily on his cushions, running a silk handkerchief over his forehead. "Egscue, plis, Ma'm'zelle. I have id, the sickness in the feedt. How you zay, goudt?" Bim murmured.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Bim murmured. "An old man—too old for Emily's shindys. Something pathetic about him, too; something almost bewildered. Only his eyes were very cold—almost fishy as they took her in, appraised her as if she were a piece of bric-a-brac tagged with a price."

She flushed and was turning away when Em caught her arm. "You must meet the Baroness, dear. Hansome—my word. Ted's sunk already. Em's whisper was almost a howl and Bim flashed a glance at Mary Frost who was, as she saw, pretending not to have heard. She followed Em to an isolated divan where Ted Frost's dark head, sleek and shining as lacquer, was bent above a young woman.

They were so deep in conversation that they failed to see the two who approached—or if they did see they gave no sign. Standing there those few seconds with Em fussing at her elbow, Bim had opportunity to study the pair and she thought she never had seen a woman as beautiful as the Baroness or a man so appreciative as Ted.

The Baroness was tall and the clinging lines of her black gown, cut too low, according to Kingcliffe standards, made her seem more slender than she was actually. Her hair was blue-black with a smooth, lazy wave falling across her ears and her eyes were long and dark and, in contrast with her dead white makeup, enormous. She looked, Bim thought, like one of the brilliant flowers late Summer had coaxed into bloom; like an American beauty or a crimson dahlia.

She wondered if Ted were thinking this too as he leaned forward, his handsome, slightly dissipated face aglow. Ted was the play-boy of Pine Hill; Ted drank too much and gambled too much and his distractions were a tradition. Still he had reformed within the past year; it must have been at least a year since Kingcliffe had had occasion to whisper and speculate and look the other way for Mary Frost's sake. Poor Mary! Patient Penelope always waiting, always forgiving.

"Baroness—Em's boom was almost timid for once. But she had to speak a second time before that dark, exquisite head raised slowly, gave them an indifferent stare."

"Baroness—Miss Bhima Martin—great little friend of mine"—Always scrupulously unconventional—that was Em.

"Oh!" The Baroness's voice was indifferent; she might as well, Bim thought, have said "What of it?" Before the girl could utter a word the lovely head turned. The intruders were dismissed with the shrug of one white shoulder.

"Well!" Bim felt like reaching over and clapping that perfect shoulder; then she felt like shrieking with laughter. "Airs!" she gurgled into Em's ears. "I never—"

"Sh!" Em, pulling her down the room boomed out quickly. "Everybody here? Oh, Bob and Millicent. My dear, they'll be the death of me, those two seasoned love birds. Ah, here they are."

A Tense Moment.

Bim observed with intense process of introductions. Millicent, fluttering, little, well-meaning bumbler trying to carry it off when she mistook the old Baron's intention and snatched away her hand, leaving his salute to fall upon empty air; Bob's stiff, ungainly nod in the old fellow's direction; Em dragging Millicent toward the divan; Millicent faring no better with the Baroness than she herself had fared; Millicent's fluttering confusion; fury leaping in the half-mad eyes of Bob.

"Something's going to break at Eagle's Nest!" Couldn't she get Walter's gloomy prophecy out of her mind? Was this it? Would Bob Trent make a scene because he fancied, though with reason, that the Baroness von Wiese had snubbed his wife? The wife he adored with fanatical devotion?

Everybody in Kingcliffe made allowance for Bob. Poor boy, galled at Verdun, he was ill much of the time and mentally unstable always. Anything might set him off. Would he say something, do something violent?

Bim held her breath. Then Em's heavy voice cut through the tension; some one rustled; guests drew together. The moment was bridged and Bim breathed again.

"Silly," she kept repeating. "Nothing can happen—nothing can break. Darn old Walter, getting on my nerves."

The table in the dining room seemed miles long with Em at the head, the Baroness at her right, the Baron at her left. Bim drew the place between the Baron and Ted and sat opposite Bunny Baird. She caught with a smile of sheer relief.

Bunny was inclined to be vague in some respects, but with his philosophical manner about this and that and his whimsical activity and his periods of glooming about his studio bungalow above Lowland Drive. But he was very genuine, very much the thoroughbred and Bim adored him so she would have adored an older brother.

His Hopes.

Just now he was, she knew, as happy as it was possible for him to be since Em, in a burst of rare generosity, had seated Laura Allan on his right. Laura Allan, who never turned a hand in Bunny's direction, was the sum total of all his hopes—his crown jewels, his pearl of great price.

Over the soup Bim studied Laura—her aristocratic profile, cold and clear-cut as a cameo; her aloof little smile; the glow that flickered and dimmed in her hazel eyes. Why did Bunny love her so? Why did he wait year after year hoping to win her?

Laura was not really one of the Pine Hill crowd; indeed she attended Em's parties in defiance of the emphatic wishes of her father, crusty old Judge Allan. Laura was a riddle, a mystery. Some time, Bim felt, she might know something she might become real, acquainted with the girl she had played with as a child.

At Laura's right was Bob Trent, white-faced, emaciated, still gloving, the hint of frenzy sliding over his countenance. Beside Bob Trent was Mary Frost—dear Mary, gentle, understanding Mary, grown a little gray, a little wrinkled, more than a little faded, with her frustrated eyes. Everyone in the world loved Mary and was her friend and Mary was a friend to all. Never a syllable of criticism on Mary's lips, never a hint of dislike in Mary's glance. And yet—

Mary didn't care for Laura Allan, oddly enough. Not by word or action did she allow it to be known, nor was it known save by Bim, who merely sensed it. Why didn't Mary feel toward Laura as she felt toward the others—toward Millicent—Em—Bim? Had she solved the riddle of Laura and found the answer not to her liking?

"Silly," Bim told herself once again and turned her attention to Millicent, who was seated between Ted and Peter Hardy. Millicent, was dowdy, she was makeshift, she was ineffectual—product of Bob's failure. The Trents were known to be hard up since Bob was unable to attend to his business affairs more than half the time. Millicent could not afford even a maid, though she struggled to keep her own household, even to the ironing and Bim suspected, the laundry at times. Brave little thing—brave little dim-wit.

Em's butler moved like a shadow across the room to a serving table where he placed a huge silver tray of wine glasses. Bim's gaze followed him idly as he busied himself at the table. He was tall and young with a mop of flaming red hair and a singularly graceful way of moving. As if he heard music in his head and moved to that, she reflected.

He was directly behind the Baroness and she, Bim saw, was staring straight ahead with odd intensity. Curiosity got the better of Bim; snatching a glance over her shoulder she saw that the Baroness was staring into the deep, wide mirror of the great old English side-board which she faced. She was watching something—she was watching the butler! The long, dark eyes followed his movements; it was almost as if she waited for him to turn around.

He did turn, with a glass in his hand. The Baroness raised her head, gave him a long look.

There was a crash as the glass fell. The man stood there, looking stupidly at the Baroness.

"Something's going to break at Eagle's Nest—"

"But not just a glass," Bim thought hysterically. "Not just a glass!"

THE MAJORITY OF PRICES, HOWEVER, SHOW SMALL GAINS

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, April 26.—Stocks opened irregular today with trading relatively quiet. The majority of prices showed small gains. Steel was down 1-4 at 131½ at the outset, but it quickly regained part of the loss.

Heavy turnover in Alaska Juneau which equalled its high for all time was an early feature. The first sales of Juneau was 6,000 shares at 15-18 up 1-8. The issue then dipped to 15-14, 5,000 and quickly rose to 15-14, its record.

Small gains were made by Transamerica, Packard, International Telephone, Standard Gas, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, Radio Corporation, Sears Roebuck, United Corporation, Western Union, Dome Mines, Servel and Paramount.

Auburn Automobile, the sensation on the downslide Saturday, rose 3 points to 206 on the first sale and held there in the early trading. A. M. Byers spurted nearly 2 points to 45.

Copper Shares reacted on reduction in the price of the metal to 9½ cents a pound, equaling the low for the past 35 years. Manufacturers today reduced prices of copper wire to conform with the lower metal price.

The Test

"What's the difference between dancing and marching?" asked the girl of her clumsy partner.

"I don't know," he replied.

"I thought so," she said. "Shall we sit down?"

Tough Luck

Sinks—Lamps are so scarce this year those Wall Street wolves must be going round with a lean and hungry look.

Jinks—They now can sympathize with the moths who have had to feed on the modern bathing suits.

Accommodating

Mistress—My husband writes his engagements on his shirt cuff. I hope you don't mind.

Laundry Maid—O, no, ma'am. I loves a bit of scandal.

POACHED EGGS DEFINED

Mrs. Newlywed—What are poached eggs?

Mr. Newlywed—Ones that are stolen, I guess.

Of Course Not

"I'm going to make a parachute jump from 10,000 feet tomorrow."

"What if the parachute doesn't open?"

"Oh, that won't stop me."

Lost Is Right

Mistress (interviewing cook)—Supposing I wanted you to cook an elaborate dinner for about 15 people—would you be lost?

Cook—That's just 'ow the last folks lost me.—Humorist.

As to Size, Yes

"Junior, you really must not eat so much candy! Don't you want to grow up to be a big man like your daddy?"

"I wanna grow up to be a big man, all right."

Fashions for the Smart Woman

FOR CRISP ORGANDIE

It's sometimes difficult to decide whether we want to be demure or sophisticated in our evening frocks; the mode offers so much that is charming of each. This Paris-designed frock settles the question of selection—for it combines a little of each. Its youthfulness is obvious in the manner of its wide circular-cut skirt which is joined to a deep yoke under a rippling pleat. Study the demure line of the shoulder cape and then note the sophisticated manner in which the bodice and skirt yoke follow the lines of the figure. This model is smart in organdie or tulle as well as the plain or flowered silks.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Bhima Martin, called "Bim," young reporter, is anxious to aid her father's small-town newspaper, the Kingcliff Banner. She rejects the marriage proposals of Walter Vance, Assistant Chief of Police. Walter asks Bim not to attend a party given by wealthy Emily Hardy.

CHAPTER II.

EMILY HARDY was the leader and center of activity in the little society colony which lived on and about Pine Hill. Nature had given her a passable amount of good looks of the somewhat full-blown type; life had given her a husband, Peter Hardy, who was little and gray and mousy and immensely rich and who had learned to keep his place and sign checks without asking stupid questions; experience had given her an off-hand, half-fellow manner which sometimes was described as "gracious" and boredom had given her a craving for celebrities.

She was a careless hostess, all things considered; she opened her enormous house, put at the beck and call of everyone who entered there, her servants, her food, her wine cellar, her rambling landscaped gardens and her bathing beach at the foot of Eagle's Nest on the east side of the mountain. After which she left her guests pretty much to themselves, popping up occasionally to boom in her light baritone "Everybody happy?"

Thrill Hunter.

On Lowland Drive, which crossed the grounds of Eagle's Nest and went on up the mountain in a southerly direction, there resided other members of the colony—the Frosts; Bunny Baird, the artist; the Trents. It was the usual thing when Emily Hardy entertained, for a string of motors to rush up from New York, thirty miles down the river. And sometimes Eagle's Nest was overrun with reporters and camera-men and even movie men, for young Mrs. Hardy gathered in noted ones from all over the world and cared not a whit that some of them were rather more notorious than noted, just so they promised a break in the monotony of living.

On the evening that Bim strolled up the drive and across the terrace to keep her dinner engagement, however, there were present only the members of the Pine Hill colony, together with the guests of honor, the Baron and the Baroness von Wiese. Bim felt a thrill of anticipation as she laid aside her cape—her one and only evening wrap—in a little room at the back of the long, wide corridor which ran the length of the house, nodded to Imogene, Emily's personal maid who was in attendance there, and followed the sound of voices to the library.

Emily boomed a greeting and turned Bim over to the Baron, a bald-headed and decrepit old fellow who stumbled up from his chair and nearly fell over as he bent from the waist to kiss the back of Bim's hand, muttering the while his pleasure in a language not quite German and not quite French and not quite English.

The old man sank back heavily on his cushions, running a silk handkerchief over his forehead. "Eggsue, plis, Ma'm'zelle. I have id, the sickness in the feedt. How you say, gaudit?"

She flushed and was turning away when Em caught her arm. "You must meet the Baroness, dear. Handsome—my word, Ted's sunk already. Em's whisper was almost a bellow and Bim flashed a glance at Walter Frost who was, as she saw, pre-tending not to have heard. She followed Em to an isolated divan where Ted Frost's dark head, sleek and shining as lacquer, was bent above a young woman.

They were so deep in conversation that they failed to see the two who approached—or if they did see they gave no sign. Standing there those few seconds with Em fussing at her elbow, Bim had opportunity to study the pair and she thought she never had seen a woman as beautiful as the Baroness or a man so appreciative as Ted.

The Baroness was tall and the clinging lines of her black gown, cut too low, according to Kingcliff standards, made her seem more slender than she was actually. Her hair was blue-black with a smooth, lazy wave falling across her ears and her eyes were long and dark and, in contrast with her dead white makeup, enormous. Of great interest in diplomatic circles was the marriage of Miss Mildred Bennett, sister of the Canadian Prime Minister, R. B. Bennett, to Major William D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to the United States. The newlyweds are shown above as they left the church in Ottawa.

STOCKS OPEN IRREGULARLY

THE MAJORITY OF PRICES, HOWEVER, SHOW SMALL GAINS

By ELMER C. WALKER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, April 26.—Stocks opened irregular today with trading relatively quiet. The majority of prices showed small gains. Steel was down 1-4 at 131 1/2 at the outset, but it quickly regained part of the loss.

Heavy turnover in Alaska Juneau which equalled its high for all time was an early feature. The first sales of Juneau was 6,000 shares at 15-18 up 1-8. The issue then dipped to 15 on 5,000 and quickly rose to 15-14, its record.

Small gains were made by Trans-America, Packard, International Telephone, Standard Gas, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, Radio Corporation, Sears Roebuck, United Corporation, Western Union, Dome Mines, Servel and Paramount.

Auburn Automobile, the sensation on the downslide Saturday, rose 3 points to 206 on the first sale and held there in the early trading. A. M. Byers spurred nearly 2 points to 45.

Copper Shares reacted on reduction in the price of the metal to 94 cents a pound, equaling the low for the past 35 years. Manufacturers today reduced prices of copper wire to conform with the lower metal price.

The Test

"What's the difference between dancing and marching?" asked the girl of her clumsy partner. "I don't know," he replied. "I thought so," she said. "Shall we sit down?"

Tough Luck

Slunks—Lunks are so scarce this year those Wall Street wolves must be going round with a lean and hungry look.

Jinks—They now can sympathize with the moths who have had to feed on the modern bathing suits.

Accommodating

Mistress—My husband writes his engagements on his shirt cuff. I hope you don't mind. Laundry Maid—O, no, ma'am. I loves a bit of scandal.

POACHED EGGS DEFINED

Mrs. Newlywed—What are poached eggs? Mr. Newlywed—Ones that are stolen, I guess.

Of Course Not

"I'm going to make a parachute jump from 10,000 feet tomorrow." "What if the parachute doesn't open?" "Oh, that won't stop me."

Lost Is Right

Mistress (interviewing cook)—Supposing I wanted you to cook an elaborate dinner for about 15 people—would you be lost? Cook—That's just 'ow the last folks lost me.—Humorist.

As to Size, Yes

"Junior, you really must not eat so much candy! Don't you want to grow up to be a big man like your daddy?" "I wanna grow up to be a big man, all right."

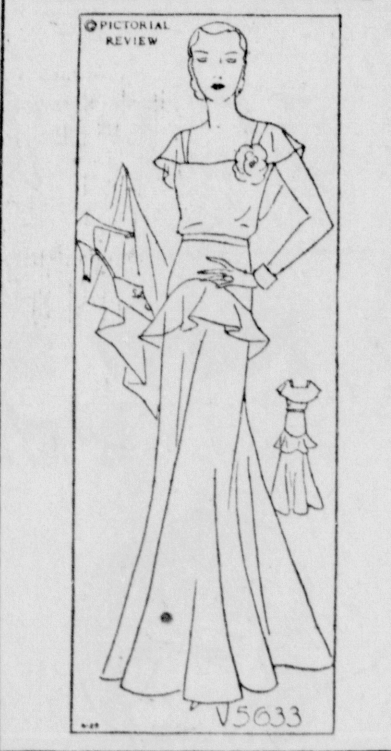

Elected Coadjutor

The Rev. Stephen E. Keeler, rector of St. Chrysostom's church of Chicago, who was elected bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of Minnesota at the concluding session of the seventy-fourth annual council at Faribault, Minn.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

FOR CRISP ORGANDIE

It's sometimes difficult to decide whether we want to be demure or sophisticated in our evening frocks; the mode offers so much that is charming of each. This Paris-designed frock settles the question of selection—for it combines a little of each. Its youthfulness is obvious in the manner of its wide circular skirt which is joined to a deep yoke under a rippling pleat. Study the demure line of the shoulder cape and then note the sophisticated manner in which the bodice and skirt yoke follow the lines of the figure. This model is smart in organdie or taffeta as well as the plain or ribbed silks. Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5633. Sizes 12 to 40, 50 cents.

JURY DEBATES FATE OF 3 ACCUSED OF KILLING BUCKLEY

Detroit, April 26.—(UP)—Specifically instructed to return a verdict of first degree murder or not guilty, a recorder court jury today debated the fate of the three men accused of killing Jerry Buckley.

The instructions were given by Judge Edward J. Hefferies during his charge this morning. Either find any or all of the defendants guilty of murder in the first degree or acquit them, he charged.

The defendants, Ted Pizzino, Angelo Levicchi and Joe Bommarito, sat calmly at the defense table with their attorneys. They listened attentively to the brief summation of the case by the judge.
